GUIDEWELL INNOVATION CENTER

Anchored by GuideWell, the state's largest health solutions company, the 92,000 SF building will also be home to a state-of-the-art biotech incubator jointly managed by the University of Central Florida and the University of Florida. Additional early and mid-stage companies and service organizations supporting the entrepreneurial ecosystem will make the Innovation Center their home. Lake Nona has gained international recognition for its unique partnerships, commitment to innovation, and culture of collaboration. Lake Nona's investment in technology has been recognized by global organizations such as Cisco, which named Lake Nona the first Iconic City in the United States and only the ninth in the world among its Smart + Connected Communities.
